England Ready for War. There are strong indications that Eng-land will espouse the cause of Turkey and take a hand in the Eastern war. The New York Herald correspondent in Lon-don is informed, on good authority, that in military circles war is regarded as in-Profound unessiness prevails everywhere, and there is great depression in trade and finance. Saturday's Pall Mall Gazette contained a most significant arti-

ole. After referring to the extraordina-nary fact of holding Cabinet meetings in Christmas week, and the attitude of Rus-

Christmas week, and the attitude of Russia and Germany, it closes as follows:
Surely it cannot be denied that there is scarcely a nation in Europe, great or small, that is not concerned in these dark and anxious troubles, or which at any moment may not find itself deeply interested. That Eogland is in this condition is a matter of absolute certainty, yet every day sermons are addressed to the Government forbidding them to see or say they see any danger, threatening them with the wrath of God and of mankind if they dare to make the least provision with the wrath of God and of mankind if they dare to make the least provision against perile clearly before their eyes.

But unless all Europe lies under an illusion and only the friends of Russia in Eagland are wise it would be mere imbediity on the part of the Government If, like no other European Ministry, they take no thought for the armament of the nation. It may be that the signs and tokens of to-day belie the real condition of affairs. It may be that yesterday's Cabinet meeting had good and not bad news before it, but unless there really is a break in the sky it would be the mereat folly for a rich nation like this, with so many interests to protect, to make no preparation for the storm.

Death of the Hon, William S Moore, of Washington, Pa.

It is with sorrow that we are called ners in the management of the paper.

In 1863, he was appointed by the Board of Commissioners, Tressurer of Washing, ton county, in the place of Mr. Jas. Pollock, who had died shortly after his election to the office. In this office he served one term.

In 1873 he sent for Mr. Christman to the East, to return and resume his old place in the management of the paper. The partnership thus formed, was most happily continued until the ravages of nappiy continued until the ravinges of disease, admoniahed the parties that the ties of business and of friendship, that had so long and so pleasantly united them, must have a termination. At this juncture, Mr. Moore's interest in the Re poster was sold to his old friend and class mate, Alex. M. Gow, for whom he always had a very warm affection.

In 1872 Mr. Moore was elected to Con-

It is 2 air. Moore was elected to Congress in which he served one term.

He was a faithful college student; a diligent student of the law; a kind hushand; an indulgent penet; a trustworthy and devoted friend; a genial companion; a conscientious editor; an incorruptible officer and a thoroughly reliable, honest a conscientious cittor; an incorruptible officer and a thoroughly reliable, honest man. Such was his delicacy of feeling and modesty that he enjoined it upon his friends in the office of the Reporter that his sickness should not be mentioned. It is due to his friends and to ourselves to state that it was at his special request that the progress of his disease was never alluded to in our columns.

CHAS. ROBERTSON, Secty.

Celery is the greatest food in the world for nerves. Persons doing much brain work find it invaluable. In cities, where the brain and nerves are called to severe exercise, people hunger for it, and the demand for it grows so that Ignorant people cannot understand why it should be so. It seems as though nature, in her quiet way, finds and materializes out of herself food or recuperation for all parts of the system that are exhausted in the demand for progress. Where people work their muscles more than their brains, beans, corn, meat, and such food is most in demand. But in cities where brains and nerves are overworked, appetite clamors for something that will repair the waste and do the weary paris the most and quickets good.

The Unsold Wool of Brooke and Washington County.

Weilbrung, December 31.

Editors Intelligencer.

Mr. 8, George estimates that there is about $150,000 of wool in Brooke county unsold. Cross Creek township holds the most of it, about $15,000 remaining in Baffalo township. Washington county, Pa., adjoining Brooke, is pretty full. Mr. Charles M. Root, of the firm of H. C. Diad & Root, the first of the county is called into activity, the right hemisphere, but when the brain sis called into activity, the right hemisphere, and is offering 40 cents for the best wool.

Meamboat Bill.

Washington, December 31.—During the coming month some prominent steamboat men will be here to go before the Commerce Commissioners regarding changes in the pending Steamboat Bill. First, that a law be passed making the certificate of a Government Inspector prima facie evidence in case of accident that the vessel, its machinery and boilers were in good condition, and that its officers were competent, thus throwing the burden of proof of suits for damages arising from accidents upon the complainants. At present, in legal proceedings of this kind, the certificate of the Government Inspector is not admitted by the Courts as prima facie evidence that the owners of a steamer have complied with the law. They will also seek to have the individual liability clause stricken out, which applies now to river boats. They will ask that a change in the law which makes them use patent appliances selected by the steamboat inspectors, subjecting them to heavy expense because of frequent changes, be amended. They ask that they shall not be required to use any appliances that have not been thoroughly tested by practical engineers.
